Department of Pacific Studies

Master of Global Politics and Transpacific Studies

The Master in Global Politics and Transpacific Studies is a two-year graduate program with three areas of specialization: China, Japan, and North America. This first-of-its-kind program provides professionals with the knowledge and skills needed to understand the most relevant global political, social, and economic issues to thrive in the world's most dynamic region, the Asia-Pacific.

Our Master degree is housed in the prestigious Department of Pacific Studies, a pioneering interdisciplinary center in Mexico that takes pride in its research and outreach to both society and policymakers. Our program, taught by globally recognized and highly experienced academics who are leaders in their fields, is designed to train the next generations of entrepreneurs, analysts, diplomats, decision-makers, and scholars.

Reception of Documents Extended until June 28th

If you are interested in the region's most pressing issues, this program is for you.
